Western Departments and Armies

Department and Army of the Ohio and Cumberland

Was first started by a small body of Kentucky Volunteers, organized at Camp Joe Holt, near Louisville, Ky., by Colonel, afterwards Major General Lovell H. Rousseau, in the spring and early summer of 1861. The State of Kentucky lying within 100 miles of the Ohio River was constituted the Department of Kentucky May 28, 1861, but was merged into the Department of the Cumberland August 15, 1861, which Department consisted of the States of Kentucky and Tennessee. This Department was again changed to the Department of the Ohio, Nov. 9, 1861, embracing the States of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, all of Kentucky lying east of the Cumberland River, and the State of Tennessee. The Department was merged into Halleck's Department of the Mississippi, March 11, 1862, but its army retained its original title and organization as Army of the Ohio until Oct. 24, 1862, when the Department of the Cumberland was again recreated, to consist of Tennessee, East of the Tennessee River, and such parts of Alabama and Georgia as may be taken possession of by United States Troops. The title being changed to Army of the Cumberland.

The several Commanders and Troops attached to this Department were as follows:

This list shows loss of only such campaigns, battles, skirmishes, etc., as were, in this particular, officially reported. The losses of many actions, skirmishes, etc., occurring in the various campaigns were included in the final statement for the campaign, making it impossible to give accurately the loss in each event. Many of the skirmishes and other events show no loss whatever, or report none. All important campaigns, battles, raids, etc., will be found in this list, however, showing losses as officially reported.
